Re-formed Catholic Anglicanism

Since the English Reformation, the Anglican faith has reflected an effort to re-form the Medieval Western Church, to recover what is true catholic (universal) to the Christian faith. The motto "back to the sources" (ad fontes) captured these efforts to restore the model of the Undivided Church.

The essays in this volume present a Re-formed Catholic Anglican approach on foundational topics such as the interpretation of Scripture, theology, ecclesiology, spirituality, the Thirty-nine Articles, worship and the prayer book, and the sacraments.

Other essays examine the specific efforts at recovery and restoration by Allen, Andrewes, Bede, Cosin, Cranmer, Dearmer, Donne, Forbes, Herbert, Hooker, Jewel, Keble, Lewis, Mascall, Neale, Newman, Pusey, Staley, Taylor, Thornton, Underhill, Ussher and Williams.
